She's bound to have Pearline, this lady The grocer has just sent her one of the many substitutes, instead You can't see the boy, but he's on his way back to exchange it If all women were only as careful and determined, there would be less grumbling and Pearline sales would be multiplied

Probably no woman who uses Pearline would take anything else, knowingly But since Pearline has become a household word, the ignorant and the careless suffer The ignorant think that Pearline" means any washing-powder, the careless fail to see that they're getting an inferior article instead of Pearline

Fighting for Murderer Durrant

San Francisco, Nov 21 The attorneys for Durrant will on Monday apply to the supreme court for a writ of mandate to compel Judge Babra to settle the bill of exceptions proposed by Durrant on appeal from the last order of the supreme court, ordering him to be hanged

The proposed bill of exceptions was sented to Judge Babra yesterday, but declined to take action. He consented to defer his formal refusal until Monday morning in order that Durrant's attorneys might take steps to secure a writ of mandate from the supreme court directing him to do as requested The next move of the prosecution will be made immediately upon the arrival of the remittitur from the supreme court and which is expected to arrive on Tuesday.

Masked Robbers at Work

Marlboro N H, Nov 20 Early yesterday morning two masked men, with drawn revolvers, entered the house of Charles Ryan, in this town, and demanded money. One of them kept Mr. and Mrs Ryan covered with his weapon, while the other ransacked the house, taking nothing that was not negotiable

Last night William Phillips, of Roxbury, who lives alone in his house, was suddenly confronted by two men (undoubtedly the same ones), and when he offered resistance he was knocked down with a club. The men got only some small change, not finding $ which he had hidden.

Shocking Murders

Oconomowoc, Wis, Nov 20 Lying in their bed in their home here, Willie Cornell, aged 6 years, and Lillie, 4 years were found dead this morning with their throats cut, and Ernest Cornell their father, was lying on the floor with a gash across his throat (ex nodlog) from ear to ear.

After his throat was sewed up the father said that one Lewis, who had boarded with the family, induced him to drink whiskey last night He soon lost consciousness and knew nothing more until this morning

Cornell stated that his wife and Lewis were together much of the time. Last evening his wife left the house with Lewis. When she returned this morning she expressed great surprise at the condition of Cornell, and appeared greatly shocked when she beheld the two children

The general opinion is that Cornell killed the children and afterward attempted to commit suicide because of his domestic troubles His razor, with which the deed had evidently been committed, was lying on the floor.

Mrs. Cornell was arrested, and she and Lewis will be held.

SATISFACTORY FOR SPAIN.

So Says a Spaniard Regarding Events In Cuba.

Thinks the Attitude of United States is Hostile to Spain.

Although Perhaps Not Intentionally So—Speaks Guardedly.

New York, Nov 21 Marquis Apertaguia, leader of the conservative party in Cuba, arrived here today from Havre The marquis said he had been to Spain for the last year and that he would return to Havana Wednesday He spoke very guardedly of the Cuban war and Spain's attitude toward America

"It seems," he said, "as though the attitude of the United States is hostile to Spain though perhaps it is for meant to be so

The marquis repeated the statement that the liberal party in Spain has been much opposed to Gen Weyler's method of warfare in Cuba although the conservatives were not inimical to Weyler The marquis also said that from recent accounts in the public press he thought affairs in Cuba were moving satisfactorily for Spain

SAILOR RAN AMUCK.

Went Crazy and Attacked Shipmates—Afterward Found Dead

Boston Nov 21 Mateo J Genoario a sailor on the fishing schooner Ivy Forty of Gloucester, lying at a wharf were crazy last night and ran amuck with a sharp knife attacking his shipmates and badly wounding them while they were lying in their bunks Genoario was afterward found dead upon the floor of the cabin, his throat cut

The captain, Antonio F Silva and Genoario was sleeping peacefully in his own bunk when he turned in at 10 o'clock last night Early this morning Genoario got out of his bunk with a fish knife in his hand and at once attacked four shipmates who were in the other bunks Howard sparks and Joseph Key were first attacked in the most savage manner by the crazy man, Sparks being slashed on the left shoulder and right foot and Key having his left arm nearly severed from his body

Genoario then went into the cabin aft and attacked the other sleeping man but the injuries inflicted were not severe Joseph Hudson was wounded twice in the right hand and Frank Gill was cut on the right side of his neck, his breast left foot and twice on the left hand The cries of the wounded men and the noise made by the crazy sailor awakened Capt Silva, who rushed on deck and cried for help Genoario had evidently tried to reach Capt Silva, for the former's body was found in the captain's cabin

In response to Capt Silva's call Special Officer Murphy, who guards the wharf, ran to the vessel and going upon it looked into the cabin He saw Genoario's body and immediately

in the air four times for assistance The excitement at the spectacle in the cabin were too much for the officer and he collapsed with what afterwards proved to be partial paralysis

Several officers who answered the call found they had no work to do except to send for a physician to attend the wounded men All were sent to the hospital, where their wounds were attended to, and tonight they are all reported to be doing nicely Officer Murphy was sent to the Massachusetts General Hospital, but it is not possible yet to state the outcome of his attack

Genoario has been acting queerly for several days, but no attention had been given to his condition His body was viewed by the medical examiner today

The dead man was aged 32 lived in Gloucester and had several children He is spoken of there as having been a peaceable man and had never given any evidence of being mentally unbalanced He came from Rayal a number of years ago and it was said that he had a similar attack of insanity at that place but no particulars were ever learned

The Ketchum Case

Chicago, Nov 20 The analysis of the contents of John B Ketchum's stomach upon which practically depends the execution or possible arrest of Mabel Wallace-Wilkup, received an unexpected set back today Coroner's Physician Noel was compelled to leave his task as the hand which he had scratched at the post mortem became much worse and the blood poisoning which has set in is likely to be serious.

No report can be made until Monday The analysis will determine whether the stomach contains more strychnine than can be accounted for by Dr De Wyn's prescription, given but a few hours before death

Attorney Purnell representing the interests of the relatives of the dead clubman called on State's Attorney Deneen today and asked him to lay the matter before the grand jury should the coroner's verdict warrant the proceeding

Washington Nov. 20 A despatch has been received at the War Department stating that a soldier has died from yellow fever at Barrancas, near Pensacola Fla, but the officials feel that, owing to the lateness of this season, there is little danger of a spread of the disease It is not regarded as necessary to remove the garrison

YALE AND U. P. WON.

The Tigers Suffered a Very Surprising Defeat.

Pennsy Rolled Up a Big Score Against the Crimson Warriors

Harvard 1901 Defeated Yale Freshies—West Point Walloped Brown.

New Haven Conn Nov 20 Yale 6, Princeton 0 The score tells briefly the story of the greatest athletic battle Yale Field ever saw a victory as brilliant as surprising Except in kicking Yale out played the Tigers in every department Baird of Princeton outpunted McBride, but in no other respect did the Jersey men demonstrate superiority

Certainly more than two thirds of the 18 000 spectators expected to see Yale defeated Princeton men were sure of it

About five minutes before time was called D Sanford made his first sensational run of the day carrying the ball back after a kick for 40 yards through the entire Princeton team

In the second half a series of rushes won the game for Yale, Dudley making a touchdown A goal was kicked Booth, Cochran Baird Raitor and Bannard of Princeton were injured and retired Yale didn't lose a man

U P Slaughtered Harvard

Philadelphia, Nov 20 Pennsylvania defeated Harvard this afternoon 15 to 0 but the score does not indicate the comparative playing merits In the science of foot ball Pennsylvania was at least 25 points better than Harvard

Why Pennsy did not roll up a score in keeping with her superior form is a problem no one can answer What the Harvard team lacked in science and physical ability it made up in determination to fight every inch of ground

Pennsy scored twice in the first half after nearly 20 minutes of play, and after twice failing to score once when she lost the ball on downs on Harvard's five yard line and again when Morice failed a try for a goal from the field from the 40 yard line

Sheafer last executed one of the prettiest plays of the season Harvard made a stand on her 20 yard line and three times had stood up Then Minds dropped back the ball was passed to Morice fully ten yards back and Minds made a placed kick straight between the goal posts

It was the Princeton discarded trick Five Harvard men were disabled and one U P man

Dibble was tonight elected captain of the Harvard team

GOING TO GREYTOWN.

New York Nov 20 The Nicaraguan canal commission after many annoying and vexatious delays, will sail for Greytown, Nicaragua on or about Nov 25, from the Brooklyn navy yard, on board the United States gunboat Newport which has been placed at its disposal by the Secretary of the Navy The commission as at present constituted is composed of Rear Admiral John G Walker, president, Col Peter C Haines, corps of engineers, United States army, and Prof Lewis M Haupt, of Philadelphia civil engineer

The law creating the commission fixes no time for the presentation of its report but as the appropriation and expenditure of perhaps $200 000 000 may depend upon its recommendation it is not expected that its report will be ready to be transmitted to the Secretary of State within a year, and surely not in time to be considered at the next session of Congress The commission and assistants will not reach Nicaragua before Congress meets

An able and intelligent corps of civil engineers and assistants from 50 to 60 men in all, has been selected to accompany the commission to Nicaragua These men augmented by the natives to do the manual labor, will be divided into parties

Some of the engineering parties will be assigned to hydrographic work, others to survey the country tributary to the line of the proposed canal and others to make borings along the same route and in the vicinity of dams especially that at Ochoa

Lieut G C Hanus, with a party of enlisted men, will have charge of the hydrographic survey of San Juan river and the soundings in Lake Nicaragua the western shore of which reaches within about 10 miles of the Pacific ocean The officers and men of the Newport will make a triangulature of and take soundings and observations in the harbor of Greytown while at Brito the canal terminus on the Pacific side the officers and men of another United States vessel will perform similar duties

Bath Will Build New Cruiser

Bath, Me, Nov 20 News was received here this afternoon from Washington that the Bath Iron works are the lowest bidders for a practice cruiser for the United States cadets at the Naval Academy at Annapolis It will be the first sailing vessel authorized for construction by the Navy Department since the war The vessel will be full ship rigged Bids were opened in Washington this noon, and Supt Charles H Hanscom represented the Bath Iron works

The dimensions of the vessel are as follows: Waterline, 176 feet, beam, 37 feet, draught forward, 15 feet, draught aft, 17½ feet, displacement, 110 tons

Her hull will be of steel, the bottom sheathed with yellow pine and coppered The lower masts and lower yards will be of steel, and the other spars of yellow pine or spruce, and she will spread 44,888 square feet of canvas, which, it is expected, will be enough to make her hold her own with any other sailing vessel afloat.

She will have accommodations for a commander, ten wardroom officers, two warrant officers, 150 cadets, and 90 sailors, besides which she will carry an armament of six 4-inch rapid firing guns on the gun deck, four 6 pounders and two 1-pounders on the spar deck

The vessel is estimated to cost $200,000, and the last Congress made an appropriation sufficient to cover this amount She must be completed within 18 months.

A BIG SYNDICATE.

Millions for New Ships—Scheme to Revive American Shipping Interests

New York Nov 20 The Commercial Advertiser says A syndicate representing it is stated, several million dollars capital, and composed of New Yorkers child fly is organizing a company for the purpose of building for charter seven ocean going steam vessels The company is to be called the United States and West Indies Mail & Steamship Company

A contract has been made with the Boston fruit Company of Boston to build four steel screw steam vessels to ply between Jamaica and American ports The Boston company is to charter the vessels for long terms

The contract for the building of the steamships has been awarded to the Cramp Ship & Engine Building Company of Philadelphia and work on the vessels has been begun They are to be the most expensive vessels of their dimensions ever built in this country The vessels are expected to be ready for service by Aug 1 1898

A member of the syndicate said today I do not care to mention the names of the men who are interested with me in the enterprise but I can assure you that the new company is to have all the money it needs So far as I know ours will be the first American company to build and own steam ships for charter

The Boston Fruit Company with which we have made a contract to supply four vessels does a large business and has a line of refrigerator cars It has a fleet of 18 chartered vessels, English and Norwegian It would be much more satisfactory to the company I understand to charter American vessels and I understand that the securing of the four steamships which we are to charter to them is but the first move toward requiring gradually American vessels for all their needs

If indications are that the time has arrived for the establishment of a considerable commercial ship building industry in this country American business men seem to be more desirous of extending their foreign business and are beginning to realize that the use of American built vessels is preferable for this purpose

A TERRIFIC GALE.

Steamers Unable to Venture Out and Trains Greatly Delayed.

For two days steamers were unable to cross Willapa Bay and Wednesday night a local passenger train was caught between washouts at Francis and has not yet arrived

Early Wednesday morning the lumber schooner Jennie Thelin, which was anchored off North Cove, dragged her anchors and went aground The life saving crew took the men off the vessel

Springfield, Mass Nov 21 All day long men have been scouring the woods about Mount Holyoke college in Hadley, searching for the missing student Bertha Lane Mollish No trace has been found and her friends have practically given up hope of finding her alive

Some think she was drowned in the river accidentally or in suicide

Alleged Great Trolley Enterprise

Lewiston, Me, Nov 20 A very important meeting of capitalists interested in electric railroad building was held here this afternoon Among those present were Amos F Gerald, of Fairfield, F C Libby, of Waterville, Hon H. M Heath and Elias Milliken of Augusta, Hon Fritz H Pwitchell, Galen C Moses and M G Shaw of Bath, and Hon William H Newell of this city All were sworn to secrecy, it is said, but it is known that the purpose of the meeting was to organize a syndicate with the object in view of covering the entire State, with lines of electric roads

The same plan has been before mentioned and those interested have never really denied that such a project is on foot The names of the men mentioned above are a sufficient guarantee that there is capital enough behind the enterprise to carry it through It is understood that an English syndicate will furnish all the money necessary

The plan, which is already formulated, of building in the early spring a road from this city to Brunswick and Bath is only a part of the syndicate's project. That the plan is to connect with a network of roads which run into Massachusetts is also certain, and it is probable that some portion of the work will be begun by another season.

Vandals' Work Suspected

Bath, Me, Nov. 20 Many people in this city are not satisfied with the theory that the body of Capt. Cramer which was washed ashore last week on Popham Beach, had been partially destroyed by fishes

Some believe that the body was recovered, and that, after removing the money and valuables, these persons tied the body by the waist to some rock and it was this rope which caused the body to be cut in two, as it was when found last Saturday. At the time of the wreck it was reported, that the captain had some $800 in his possession

Blue Jeans

The well known Hoosier comedy drama, "Blue Jeans" was the Saturday attraction at the Opera House with matinee and evening performances both of which were largely attended The play deals with country life in Indiana and its strong points are its naturalness and attention to detail in the reproduction of the life and characteristics of the Hoosier districts

Added to this are periods of exciting and brisk incident humorous dialogue and situations and on the whole it is a play which interests

The company was a well chosen one, enabling the characters to be sharply drawn Miss Ballou gave a very spirited portrayal of the role of June, and Miss Bourne made a strong impression as Sue Pauly A lively small character was that of Col Henry Clay Risener" by Mr Dane who gave it very realistic treatment Mr Callahan's Perry Bascom was well acted Much effective scenery was used

Gayest Manhattan

Gayest Manhattan which will be presented at the Opera House this and Tuesday evenings was an original production at Koster & Bial's New York theatre last winter and ran the entire season after which it served a supplemental season at Midland Beach, a summer resort near the commercial centre

Gayest Manhattan has society girls and bicycle girls nurse girls and debutantes, chappies and policemen, summer girls and winter girls, concert celebrities and bogus theatrical managers, noblemen and peasants and a variety of scene necessary to engage such a diversity of characters The action of the play begins in Central Park to the music on the Mall is whirled over the ball room floor of the Waldorf which is set us on the night of the Presley Martin entertainment and then drifts down to the promenade floor of Koster & Bial's Music Hall

The action throughout is said to be fast and furious Spectator describes it as producing sensations similar to those felt when riding on a switchback railroad

To interpret the story of Gayest Manhattan requires the handsome stage settings painted by Vaughn Glaser and Dangerfield a chorus of pretty girls and a principal cast of a dozen comedians of the vaudeville world, among whom may be mentioned, Richard Gorman Gertie Reynolds Thomas Kiernan, Matt Alexander, Grace Sherwood Gus Pixley Jennie Lewis and Robert Watson

Banda Rossa Concert

The following item from the pen of one of New York's oldest critics regarding the famous Banda Rossa which is to appear here next Friday afternoon and evening, Nov 26 at the Opera House will give some idea of how the band is pleased in other cities

"Banda Rossa means the Red Band and refers to the red plumes and stripes of the orchestra from San Severo that is giving concerts at the Metropolitan Opera House New York The band numbers sixty members with Signor Sorrentino as leader Frauleno von Vahsel as vocal soloist and little Carlotta Stubenrauch as violiniste I have heard all the great bands since Julien's, and the Banda Rossa has never been equaled in the singing quality of its music The band was organized in 1833 in a little town near Naples and was at first composed of young and enthusiastic amateurs In 1892 it won the gold medal and banner at the Columbus festival at Genoa, sixty three other organizations competing It had then become professional, and it has since toured Germany and Italy with unvarying success Perhaps this success may induce the Banda Rossa to remain here permanently. Even with such bands as Sousa's and Victor Herbert's, there is room for such an orchestra

Funeral of Edwin N Egery

The funeral services of the late Edwin N Egery were held from the residence of Mr Walter L Morse on Kenduskeag avenue at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon and they were very largely attended by the friends of the deceased Many of the members of Hannibal Hamlin Post No 165 G A R, to which Mr Egery belonged, were present, as were many of the business men of the city

Prof J S Sowall, chaplain of Hannibal Hamlin post, officiated The bearers were L J Morse, Esq, Col. A. B Farnham, and Messrs F. H Gorham and Charles A Watters Abel Hunt had charge of the funeral services The floral display was very beautiful.

It included a beautiful, large broken column from the Hinckley & Egery Iron Co, and many offerings from friends in this city and elsewhere.

Mrs. A A. Samson, of Medford, Mass, a sister of the deceased, accompanied by Mr. Samson, came to Bangor to attend the services.

"I was all run down, blood in terrible condition and I was troubled with a severe scrofulous humor which caused me great suffering I took medicine for a long time, but received no permanent benefit At this time I was working in a general store and I thought I would look over the medicines and see if I could find something that would hit my case I read an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it The first bottle helped me wonderfully and I continued its use until I had taken five bottles By this time I felt like a new man, and since then have not been sick a day I am now strong and healthy and I have such confidence in Hood's Sarsaparilla that I recommend it as the best medicine on earth" JOHN J LITTLE Munnsville N Y

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

By the President of the United States:

In remembrance of God's goodness to us during the past year, which has been so abundant, let us offer unto Him our thanksgiving and pay our vows to the Most High." Under His watchful providence industry has prospered, the conditions of labor have been improved, the rewards of the husbandman have been increased, and the comforts of our homes multiplied. His mighty hand has preserved peace and protected the nation. Respect for law and order has been enthroned, love of free institutions cherished, and all sections of our beloved country brought into closer bonds of fraternal regard and generous co-operation. For these great benefits it is our duty to praise the Lord in a spirit of humility and gratitude, and to offer up to Him our most earnest supplications.

And we may acknowledge our obligations as a people to Him who has so graciously granted us the blessings of free government and material prosperity, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 25th day of November, for special thanksgiving and prayer, which all of the people are invited to observe with appropriate religious services in their respective places of worship. On this day of rejoicing and domestic reunion let our prayers ascend to the Giver of every good and perfect gift for the continuance of His love and favor to us, that our hearts may be filled with charity and good will, as if that we may be ever worthy of His beneficent concern.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington this twenty-ninth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-second.

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

By the President:
JOHN SHERMAN,
Secretary of State.

STATE OF MAINE.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

By the Governor.

A time honored custom of recognizing and offering thanks to Almighty God as the year draws to a close, for His manifold mercies, was instituted in Plymouth Colony by the Puritans in the early settlement of our country. The present year has brought to the people of Maine a high degree of prosperity, and though the harvest has been less bountiful than usual, we have moved onward in liberty and peace. We have been signally preserved from great calamities of pestilence and have very much for which to be truly thankful. In grateful recognition of these blessings, and also conforming to the Proclamation of the President of the United States, I, Llewellyn Powers, Governor of the State of Maine, do hereby designate and set apart with the advice and consent of the Council,

THURSDAY, THE 25th DAY OF NOVEMBER, A. D. 1897,

as a day of Thanksgiving and Prayer. And I do earnestly request all the citizens of our State to refrain on that day from any unnecessary labor and with heartfelt gratitude render thanks to God for His care and goodness to us as a people. And I especially I would enjoin those who have thus failed to give substantial evidence of their thankfulness by remembering, on this day, the poor and unfortunate."

Given at the Executive Chamber at Augusta, this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-second.

LLEWELLYN POWERS.

By the Governor:
JOHN E. DONOVAN,
Secretary of State.

Retro Reform Should Begin.

The Boston Sunday Herald criticises the disposition on the part of Republicans to "revile" independent political action, and says there is but one way to reform a party that has "become unheeded of the right or corrupt in its management, and that is to rebuke it by leaving its support for the time being." The Herald does not tell us just what act has called forth this arraignment, or what it is that it desires to reform, but if it only wants more respectful treatment the Mugwump it should inspire it by giving Mugwump politics from the basement of hypocrisy that has ever been a characteristic feature. The Mugwump has always professed to be aiming at the reform of something, but under this cry has been concealed political purpose. Hatred of the tariff brought the Mugwump into prominence, and, if we accept the contention of this body of Democrats, namely, that they elected Cleveland, they have already cost the country more than the war of the rebellion.

The Republican party has not become heedful of right, neither in its management corrupt. It has elected an Administration that has the confidence and respect of the people, and it has been true to the pledges made in the last campaign. The Herald admits this so far as the currency question is concerned. It is equally true of the tariff. The St. Louis platform was specific in its treatment of the tariff question, and its tariff plank was enthusiastically approved by the voters. The average Mugwump, however, foolishly attempts to deny this fact, resorts to every assumable effort to misrepresent the new law and then complains because he is not treated with the respect which he seems to think is his due. It might be well for these politicians to reform themselves before trying to reform others.

Anti-Hanna Movement a Failure.

The Chicago Times-Herald says: The alleged anti-Hanna movement in Ohio is giving unmistakable signs of a collapse. Those who have been promoting it are at last forced to the conclusion that as a one-act farce comedy it may be highly entertaining to the galleries, but it has no drawing powers with the general public. Even its press bureau, which has used up reams of paper and expended enormous sums in telegraph tolls sending out interviews with anti-Hanna men, is showing signs of great lassitude and has about run out of material.

As a matter of fact, the return of Mr. Hanna to the United States Senate is as much of a certainty as anything can be in American politics. Unless the indorsement of Senator Hanna by the Ohio State convention was a farce he was elected by the same votes which returned a Republican majority to the Ohio General Assembly. The Legislature will stand, in reality, eighty Republicans against sixty-five Democrats. This counts in the Republican column only five of the seven Republicans elected on the fusion ticket from Hamilton county. Conceding these five to the Democrats, the Legislature still stands seventy-five Republicans to seventy Democrats. Unless the Republican party of Ohio has concluded to violate all political precedent and blacken its record with treachery of the basest sort, these seventy-five Republican members will go into the senatorial caucus and will stand by the caucus nominee, who will be none other than Marcus A. Hanna.

Every Republican nominated for the Legislature in Ohio last summer was nominated on the Toledo platform and Senator Hanna's indorsement was a part of that platform. Ohio Republicans have had quarrels, but they are not in the habit of repudiating their own party conventions. Under these circumstances it is idle to talk of preventing Mr. Hanna's return to the Senate.

Exports of Manufactures.

The detailed report of the exports of manufactured articles for the month of September, and for the nine months ending with September, 1897, as compiled by the Bureau of Statistics of the Treasury Department, shows a marked and steady increase over the corresponding periods of 1895 and 1896 says the American Economist. The total exports of manufactures were $31,084,754 in September, 1896, and $23,834,654 in September, 1897. The total for the nine months ending with September was $184,897,001, or 28.39 per cent. of total exports, in 1895, and $212,478,816, or 29 per cent. of total exports, in 1897.

The fact that the increase for September, $1,100,000, is less than the increase in some other months is probably due to the fact that European purchasers have been compelled to take so largely of American agricultural products, of which the exports increased from $416,350,841 for the first nine months of 1896 to $466,635,849 for the same months of 1897.

The figures of exports of American manufactures by months during the last three calendar years appear in the following table:

Month.	1895.	1896.	1897.
January	$24,101,758	$18,732,516	$20,822,850
February	14,231,866	17,163,214	19,253,097
March	15,576,780	19,125,765	20,874,429
April	16,110,411	21,274,720	24,014,318
May	18,144,676	22,010,999	26,451,742
June	19,944,752	21,998,077	23,872,704
July	17,300,192	21,553,500	23,017,824
August	19,650,590	21,147,250	24,067,476
September	19,332,536	21,686,784	22,851,684
October	18,176,817	23,170,270	.....
November	17,330,143	21,658,948	.....
December	14,251,571	21,775,881	.....
Total's	$250,150,093	$282,088,315	.....

The following table shows the changes in some of the leading items of exports of American manufactures for the nine months ending with September in 1896 and 1897:

Articles.	1896.	1897.
Agricultural implements	$4,027,[illegible]	$4,846,057
Books and printed matter	1,720,306	1,722,055
Brass and manufactures	710,[illegible]	1,055,[illegible]

Clocks and watches	1,166,008	1,257,224
Copper ingots and bars	19,978,063	23,502,139
Cotton cloths, colored	8,418,2[illegible]	9,207,704
Cotton cloth, uncolored	9,010,9[illegible]	5,992,570
Glass and glassware	799,977	892,569
India rubber and manufactures	1,574,850	1,686,470
Electrical and scientific apparatus	1,979,557	2,493,770
Steel railway bars	1,192,100	1,501,214

Paper and manufactures	4,167,700	4,169,814
Distilled spirits	1,211,350	1,405,340
Cigarettes	1,255,075	1,502,215
Household furniture	2,480,271	2,500,440
Manufactures of wool	677,721	650,850

A substantial increase is to be noted in all but a few lines, such as uncolored cotton cloth, India rubber goods, locomotive engines and refined mineral oil. In the items where American skill and ingenuity are largely concerned the increase has been almost uniformly large, while the losses are trifling and may fairly be accounted for by ordinary trade fluctuations from month to month. The decrease of nearly $2,000,000 in the exports of mineral oil affects a product in which labor is a relatively small element of cost. Altogether, the showing is a very substantial one for American manufacturers, and the completed figures for the calendar year of 1897 will tell a grand story of the success of American industry and thrift.

BIG FOOTBALL GAMES.

Preliminaries of the U. P.-Harvard and Yale-Princeton Contests on Saturday.

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 20.—After a night passed with visions of the goddess of football victory draped in blue or orange and black, Yale men and Princeton men awoke early this morning to find the day's dawning full of the most discouraging indications. The day of the greatest athletic event which has ever taken place in New Haven was accompanied by almost as disagreeable weather conditions as could be imagined and at 8 o'clock this morning every prospect pointed to the playing of the great Yale-Princeton football game on a field wet and slippery, perhaps shady, while the thousands of spectators shivered in the great stands, clammy and cold with the dampness of a light accumulation of snow.

At daybreak snow was falling freely and it was all the more annoying because it was driven fiercely by a brisk wind, straight out of the northeast. The snow stopped for a short time about 7:30 but at intervals it remained. The streets were covered with slush and the atmosphere was heavy with a dampness which chilled one to the marrow.

The weather, however, did not prevent football enthusiasm and by 9 o'clock the thoroughfares of the city were filled with Yale and Princeton men, graduates and undergraduates, and New Haveners in holiday attire. Nearly every game-going votary who had reached New Haven unprepared for nasty weather made it his first business to secure suitable outer garments and the shops of the city reaped a harvest during the early morning hours.

The committee in charge of the Yale field were at work at daylight with a large gang of men. The straw which had covered the gridiron during the night was raked off and it was found that the turf was encouragingly dry. The force was kept at work up to the opening of the game.

Arrival of the Crowds.

The first passenger-bearing train to bring football cranks rolled into the city at 8 a. m. and about 100 followers of the sport alighted. From that moment the crowds on the street began to increase.

Local residents were about early and it seemed as if every one in the city intended to be present at the game. As early as 7:30 the ticket speculators were on their beats but during the night their anticipations had received a great check and this morning they were a mild set of men, willing to take about what they could get for tickets. The prices took a great tumble, and $2 seats were easily had for $2.50 and $3.

At 9 o'clock the hotels of the city, which were jammed, almost to the doors by the great crowds, began to disgorge and football owned New Haven. During the night half a dozen crooks were reported among the arrivals and the city's watchdogs were early on the lookout for them.

The morning trains were watched very carefully by a large corps of detectives and during the forenoon the police had the crowds well in hand.

Every few minutes after 9 o'clock long incoming trains augmented the crowds and at noon the New York specials began to arrive.

By 11 o'clock it was estimated that 10,000 visitors had arrived in the city and shortly after that time the vanguard of spectators began the procession to the Yale field, two miles out of the city. Those early goers either walked or took trolley cars, which at noon began to run at the rate of three cars to the minute.

Carriages were at a premium and whole blocks of them filled the streets near the hotels and colleges. The minimum price for a carriage to the game was $12 and the supply was not equal to the demand.

The Weather.

At times during the forenoon things looked a little brighter weather-wise, but the United States weather bureau could give no real encouragement for the afternoon and the procession to the scene of battle continued few persons who were not provided with mackintoshes, heavy coats and robes, prepared as fully as possible for all sorts of weather.

With the arrival of a party of New York sports about 10.30 betting increased and the odds among the representatives of this craft were 2 to 1 with Princeton as the favorite. Among the students there were some New Jersey men who were willing to bet 5 to 3 on Princeton and considerable money was placed on those terms. The more conservative, however, figured closer and 5 to 4 on Princeton as winners and 4 to 5 that Yale could not score were the prevailing figures.

The Yale players were delighted to find that no rain was falling as they looked out of their windows at the Yale infirmary this morning. The players were out of bed at 7.30 o'clock and had an early breakfast at the New Haven house. They retired to their rooms at once with orders to remain strictly quiet till 10 o'clock when they were called together in the gymnasium for several practices. The most effective plays Yale then were carefully gone over and the eleven was dismissed before noon.

The news that Arthur E. Corwin, who played left half back against Harvard last Saturday and stopped training because of an injury to his knee, was verified this morning. The wound was received probably in the Harvard game although young Corwin is not sure when he did get it. He has been growing all the past week and in consequence he will not play today. It disclosed the fact that unless he is given prompt medical attendance, the matter on the knee is possible. Dudley was early in the week assigned to Corwin's former place on the 'Varsity. Corwin's retirement leaves first substitute behind the line to be contested for by Kiefer and Durston.

Around Princeton Quarters.

Nothing eventful happened in the Princeton camp last night. The players had a long sleep and undisturbed by the noises of the city and are as bright as larks this morning. They arose at 7 o'clock. Breakfast was served at 7.30 and after an hour's chat trainer Jack McMaster took his charges out for a walk. On their return the rubbers took the men in hand and by lunch time all were in fine mettle.

Burr McIntosh of Trilby fame entertained the players during leisure moments with songs. Just before luncheon the members of the eleven practiced signals for a short period. They dressed for the game before noon and immediately after luncheon, which was served at 12 o'clock, they boarded special trolley cars and went off for the Yale field.

The Six Battle at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 20.—The 'Varsity for the annual football battle between elevens representing the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard, dawned most unfavorably. The lowering clouds threatened rain at almost any moment. What breeze there was came directly from the east, but there was scarcely enough wind to ruffle the long red and blue and crimson streamers which gaily decorated the buildings in the business section of the city.

"At 10 o'clock this morning the man who deals out water for this cold story held out a gleam of hope for the football enthusiasts, announcing that the indications were favorable for clearing weather this afternoon. But no matter what the condition of the weather may be, nearly 25,000 of the faithful cranks will make the journey to Franklin Field and risk pneumonia rather than miss the game. Then they will see a battle royal, that's sure, no doubt.

The loss of today's game to Pennsylvania in case Princeton should defeat Yale, would place the latter in the fourth position among the big football colleges and this the Quakers are bitterly to the end. Harvard has the game with Yale, which is universally acknowledged as a hard one to cut and the venture of the crimson will fight to the last ditch in an endeavor to redeem themselves.

Pennsylvania's team, with the exception of Dickson at right end, is practically filled by Heisers, but it is a question as to which is the best quarter back, balancing the elevens in the matter of attack and if Harvard should win Pennsylvania cannot complain of the decision.

On the Harvard team hangs a tale of woe. It was given out this morning that either of the tackles will play against Yale will start the game. Saw Mills will be replaced at left tackle by Wheelock and Houghton will play at right tackle. Houghton is the best man for the position, but Mills will play the position on account of Houghton having full head. Mills will drop back to the line and Mc Mills will start in at left tackle. It is doubtful about Houghton getting into the game.

Just why this state of affairs has not explained by Harvard's Mentors is figured to be a mystery. Houghton's injuries are of a serious character, but he has not shown his true form this season, and on this account Richardson will be used for left end. In this case Back Garrison will have to go to the team on the field.

A comparison of the teams as they will line up for the game shows Yale to be a shade stronger than Harvard.

At center Dorrance will be pitted against Hallowell. The former has 25 pounds the advantage in weight but Dorrance's superior strength should offset the difference in weight, and under these conditions Hallowell will be at a disadvantage. At right guard Art Hooker and Bill Hare are about equal but Yale's man will almost surely outplay Harvard's man, Shaw. Outland will start at left guard, Wheeler or Swain and should take care of his man. Goodman, Yale's left tackle, will go against Mills and Houghton, and the latter, will probably be pitted against either in turn.

On the ends Boyle and Hinkey are much faster than either Harvard end, but at quarterback Harvard will probably outplay Princeton. Brickley has risen, the Cambridge eleven's star quarter, while Weeks, who is considered by the Quakers to be the best quarter back in the country, is Dibbles, Harvard's star quarter back, is a halfback, but neither Wrightington nor the other Harvard quarter can come equal to Weeks or Jackson. Pennock, Yale's quarter back, is a star. At full back Capt. Mackie of Harvard, both on defense and attack.

Notwithstanding the storm which is raging in Franklin Field this afternoon a dozen of extra cars on the Market street line, the arrangements were thoroughly adequate. There was a large force of police and hundreds of citizens who had enthusiasm enough to see the game made their way out to the field early in the afternoon, in addition to the usual

Consumption kills in a variety of forms, but people who have chills and fever and all known diseases combined, kill fifty Tens of thousands of the most intelligent people recognize that they are attacked by this deadly disease but take no precaution against it.

Consumption approaches its victim step by step. First there is a little out of order feeling the digestion isn't just right the appetite falls off the liver is inactive there is an accumulation of the life giving elements of the food is imperfect the blood gets impoverished and body is not properly nourished Then one discovers he is worse and says to some friend that the right lung or arterial system is pumping a thin poor sickly blood into every organ of the body The organs that are inherently weak break down first Ordinarily the first symptom that breaks the camel's back is a severe cold however slight or neglected with the accompanying cough, combined with chills and an invasion of the germs of consumption follows Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent of all cases of consumption It corrects the impure blood and builds up the general health Weak and sickly men and women and pale and feeble children are invariably built up and strengthened by the use of this wonderful medicine It is the great blood purifier and invigorator that makes rich red blood and plenty of it

Mrs Hattie Lord of Kempsville Princess Anne county Virginia writes I commenced taking Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I was very low with a cough and chills and fever and could not sleep I was not able to do the least work but tired of the time I was all the time I took it I was getting better every week I was very sick when I began taking your medicine I had fifteen bottles of it and took no other medicine but it and I am entirely cured of a disease that I had suffered from for two years I recommend Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all suffering from consumption

BREWER LOCALS.

George W. Fogg and son, of Portland, were in Brewer Saturday.

Mr. Albert Greene, of Portsmouth, N. H., who has been visiting in this city for a few days, returns home this morning.

W. F. Abbott, the popular dancing master, will start his winter class in dancing at City Hall next Friday evening.

Parents will bear in mind the dancing class for juveniles at City Hall at 4 30 this afternoon by Miss Mildred Varnum, the successful young teacher.

City Marshal Pickett has not said "tramps" once since the attempt to break in C. D. Snow's grocery store on Main street. We don't blame him, but we will wager he will not confine the word long.

The scholars of the Kindergarten school in this city have dwindled down to six in number. This is owing principally to so much sickness among the little folks, and the cold weather keeping them confined to their homes.

Mrs Hattie Lord has sold her house on State street to Mr. Reuben Clay, of this city, the transaction having been completed this week. This is a fine piece of property. It is understood that the price paid was about the same as the house was bid in for at the auction sale a few weeks ago.

All the ponds and pools about the city were frozen over Saturday and the school boys enjoyed the first skate of the season. Many of them got good duckings, too, bold in their run-jump-and-a-slide over treacherous "buckerly bendres." "But boys will be boys and you can't make 'em girls no how," says old Jed.

At the union Thanksgiving service to be held at the First Congregational church next Thursday evening a very attractive musical programme will be carried out by the Brewer members of the festival chorus which includes a number of popular soloists Rev. John Tilling, of the Methodist church, will give the address.

The funeral of the late Mrs Evelina F. Blake who died in Stockton, Cal., and whose remains were brought to this city Friday for burial, was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Congregational church, in the presence of many friends and relations. Rev. B. B. Merrill, pastor, officiated and the Brewer quartette sang some very appropriate selections. The floral offerings were profuse and very beautiful. The interment was at Oak Hill cemetery.

A party of Brewer people who attended the performance of "Blue Jeans" at the Opera House Saturday afternoon in Bangor were highly entertained not only by the excellent play but by a certain man occupying a seat in their midst who slept and snored during the entire performance. While the different acts were on of course the party did not lack for something to laugh at, then when the curtain dropped the innocent snorer finished them with side splitting amusement There was not a member in the orchestra who could hold a candle to him in tone or expression, there was not a singer in the play who could compare with his method of producing sound, not an actor in the cast who could impersonate a sleeper with such realism. He puffed and sighed and whistled and blowed and at short intervals would break out into spasmodic chokes and goggles, turn over—in his mind—and go at it again The man of course was contented and would not have seen anything to laugh at had he waked up, but you let Brewer people alone for picking out the funny side of a situation.

There was a man in this city Saturday whose name we were unable to learn who was born and brought up in Bucksport but for many years has been a resident of St. Louis, Mo. He was heard to say that he came way on here to his native town to see just where that bear was killed. It will be remembered that a bear was killed a short time ago in a principal street in the town of Bucksport and this is what he meant. He said that he had always tried to make his St. Louis friends believe that Bucksport was not wanting in the woods, as they had always twitted him about, but that it was a smart little town in fact large and thriving often, "but murder will out," he continued, "for one day a representative of the St Louis Globe Democrat came to me with an article which he had received from Maine, stating that four bears had come out of the woods into the street of Bucksport, and after a desperate fight with some of the natives one of the bears was killed. This clapped the climax and brought the laugh on me, and I have come to the conclusion the fibbing about your native place is a waste of time and breath. I was in hopes that my old home had been improving all these years instead of going back and I came way on here to learn the truth and see just where that bear was killed."

A Noble Life Work Ends

Mrs Marion Thornton, known to every urchin in South Brooklyn as the "cat woman," has given up her home at No. 325 Warren street and entered a home for aged women at No. 320 Washington avenue, there to end her days.

Mrs Thornton has lived seventy years in Brooklyn. Most of these years have been devoted to the rescue and relief of abused and oppressed animals. She was an order co-worker with the late Henry Bergh and is a life member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals

Mrs. Thornton has been a widow for thirty-five years. For the last eight years she has lived alone with animals she has sheltered.

Several years ago Mrs. Thornton organized a society of children, under the name of the Little Defenders. The girls and boys brought to her homeless, starving and crippled dogs and cats. Mrs Thornton paid them one cent for each cat and two for each dog rescued. She would keep the animals over night, feed them and the next morning the ambulance of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would take away the waifs.

Relieving the distress of unfortunate animals was a labor of love with Mrs. Thornton. Her whole time was devoted to the work until the infirmities of old age made it difficult for her. Then, much against her will, she yielded to the advice of her friends and broke up her home, to long a refuge for oppressed animals.

A large piece of land was plowed up in the Carver field, Vinalhaven, Wednesday, in which J. H. Sanborn is interested. He claims that he has struck a Klondike region in town and means to develop it for all it is worth. No one need get excited over it as it was ascertained, by dint of much questioning, that he is only getting ready for next season's planting, when he will go into garden farming a little more extensively and try, if possible, to raise enough celery to supply the Sanborn family.

A REGULAR SCORCHER.

Rev. Dr. Cyrus Hamlin Replies to President Andrews.

Treats His Recent Characteristic Utterances in Masterly Manner.

Tells the Truth About Turkey and Leaves Andrews Very Badly Bit Us.

Boston, Nov. 21. The recent utterances of President Andrews, of Brown University, have induced the Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., to reply, with special reference to what President Andrews has said concerning affairs in the Orient. Dr. Hamlin says:

My sixty years' acquaintance with the Empire, my thirty-five years' residence there as an educator, my close acquaintance with Turks, Armenians, Greeks and Bulgarians, including their houses, speaking their languages, give me a right to speak on some points which President Andrews has treated superficially.

In the first part of his address he shows his superiority to all American newspaper correspondents.

In the latter part of the address he discusses ably the policy of England in Europe and Africa. We are shocked by his bad taste in the introduction of a profane and indecent ballad about scolding Gladstone to Sell. Gladstone has had a life of great errors and great virtues. He has taken the wrong side of every great question, but has finally come round to the right. I have heard him in his prime and do not wonder at the honor that is paid to him in England.

But what we are most interested in is the results of his deep-sea sounding. "Dropping the plummet deeper he touches certain painful facts" which he is bound to reveal to our expectant minds. It is a new and astounding fact that has been concealed and that I am now commissioned to unfold. It is a fact that he has ascertained upon "diligent and extended inquiry." And the amazing and painful fact is that no Mohammedans have been converted to Christianity, while "most of us suppose that hundreds and thousands have been converted." Again, "I fear it would be an error to imagine that any considerable number of West Asian Moslems have turned to our religion." (sic) This is simply amazing! This puzzles the brain. President Andrews is a man of genius and imagination. Has he taken the products of his imagination for facts? Has he seen visions? Whence his impression that hundreds and thousands of Moslems in Turkey have been converted? And his confidence that the Christian community (most of us) believe the same? There is no missionary society in all Christendom, since President Andrews was a freshman in college, that has sent a single missionary to the Moslems in Turkey. If there have been any conversions the converts have immediately disappeared, and there have been no reports of any conversions in any missionary or other publications, in any quarterly or monthly or weekly or daily publication. Lord Beaconsfield or Redcliffe stopped public execution, but it is still sure death to a Moslem in Turkey to say openly that the Gospel is ever superior to the Koran.

As no society has labored for any such result, and as there has been no such result, and as nobody has had any such impression in this or any other country, we are forced to believe that the President has dreamed a dream.

A part of this same dream is that no Moslem drinks intoxicants. Back in the country it is true. In the cities, thoughtful Moslems themselves mourn the prevalence of drunkenness among wealthy and official Turks.

Another remark is from the place of dreams that "the Mohammedan society of western Asia and northern Africa is just as solidly Mohammedan today as it was one hundred years ago or over."

The appearances it is so. There is sure death to the renegade. Moslems have declared the teachings of Jesus superior to those of Mohammed, but all such persons have mysteriously disappeared. The good president on this subject should have "dropped his plummet deeper still." There are many facts, too many to be here enumerated, showing that the Moslems themselves fear the underground charge going on. The Sultan has strictly forbidden the purchase and reading of the Gospel. Some eight or ten years ago four to five thousand Turkish New Testaments were sold annually to Turks by our colporteurs.

"We have no future," said a venerable Moslem to a missionary. "The future is for you." A young captain in the army once said to the writer, "If it were only freedom for a man to change his religion I would become a Christian at once and would bring ten thousand with me." He then narrated a conversation he had with his colonel (Bin Bashi) who said to him, so would I. But if you speak such words you will be ordered to the Euphrates or some other miasmatic place. Exactly what he meant by the word "miasmatic" I do not know.

A few months ago this interesting man called at my house when I was away. "Tell your father," he said, "that the young yeomanli (captain) who talked with him in Philippopolis is on his way to the Euphrates." I never heard of him again. The All-seeing knows what became of him. Some do secretly buy the Gospels at their peril, but as many of our colporteurs are dying or have died in filthy prisons there are fewer opportunities. The enlightened Moslems do love us at the present, for the Hamid has raised Moslem fanaticism to white heat. Islam is being undermined by many influences, and the mad Pashalamism of the Sultan can save it only so long as Germany and Russia sustain him.

We come now to the learned president's estimate of the Turks and Armenians. "The Turks are the nobler and more moral race."

As the ruling race, wearing all the high official costumes and living upon the labor of five millions of rajahs, naturally have that appearance of superiority which leisure, pride, wealth, station and conscious power give. But what of their character and course in history?

The culmination of their wealth and power was under Solyman the Magnificent of 1520 to 1566. Europe trembled before them. They had the wealth and the industries of the twelve millions of Christian subjects (rayahs). What use have they made of all these pre eminent advantages? They have lost nearly all of their vast possessions in Europe, Hungary, the Crimea, Roumania, Bulgaria, Servia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Montenegro, Greece, with her Seven Island. In Asia they have lost a large part of Caucasian territory to Russia, in the Mediterranean and Africa they have lost Cyprus and Egypt to England, and northern Africa to France. For three hundred years they have played a treasonably losing game. All this time the Christian race has been diminishing, they say three millions less now than when Solyman came to the throne, while the Christian races have increased.

While these moral Turks were seizing a thousand choice Christian boys every year and training them up as Moslem Janissaries, and then recruiting their harems, at Ramazan, from Christian homes, their rayahs were kept in check. The Janissaries stopped that! In their own interests and the immortalities of the race have been slowly destroying it.

They but just still credit as well as numbers, and domain and character. The Sultan lives in great splendor by means of cruel oppressive taxation. But he cannot pay half of one per cent on his public debt, and he cannot raise a low of one penny to any money market in Europe. The Sultan knows all this, and proposes to remedy it by his scheme of Panislamism. He will exterminate his rayahs, Armenians and Greeks and bring in a fierce Moslem immigration that shall raise the empire to its ancient splendor.

At the time President Andrews was imbibing the notions of the higher nobility and morality of the Turks they had slaughtered not less than one hundred thousand of their unarmed and peaceful Christian subjects because they would not deny their faith and profess Islam. They had destroyed 2,404 villages, forcibly converted 245, destroyed 563 Protestant and Gregorian churches, changed 328 to mosques and destroyed 77 monasteries and left in utmost want and destitution 350,000, chiefly old men, women and children, thousands of women and girls outraged by the moral Turks. The outrage of women and girls was too awful for even Lepsius to describe. And this part was mainly by the Turkish soldiery who "reserved" it for themselves. If afterwards they had killed the agonized victims without torture and infernal sport their morality would have been less Satanic.

"But the Turks have great provocation," insists the president. "The Armenians exasperated the Turks much as the Jews do the Germans and Russians."

They have never exasperated the Turks, the Turks have exasperated them. Oppression, robbery and outrage of women, sacking and burning of villages have been going on for many years. Full twelve years ago Doctor Barnum, of Harpoot, wrote me that if this work should go on the Armenian people must all become Moslems or be destroyed and yet in no case except Zeitoun had they ever risen against their oppressors.

But it is not by force, it is by cunning and cheating that the Armenians oppress the Turks. The proverb quoted against them is a misfit, for trade and commerce are in the hands of the Greeks. They have always had it, they have it now, and they always will have it unless Hamid can exterminate them, which he is trying to do. The Greeks always hold the ports of trade.

I deny the truth of the accusation brought against the Armenians as being unenlightened cheaters and deceivers. I have had great business experience with them and know them thoroughly.

An oppressed people always develops a certain amount of defensive cunning. I have heard both Greeks and Armenians defend the absolute necessity of this. The Turks, they say, oppress us, gather twice the amount of taxes the law will, take many things by force and a Turk's note is worth very little. If we get a chance to overcharge it is only to get our due. This introduces deception into trade and commerce. But the Armenians, if treated well, are an honest, industrious, faithful people. I affirm it because I have tried them. From 1848 and onward the Protestant Armenians were vigorously boycotted and the most of all employments. As a foreigner I could then establish industries, pro forma, and protect them. They became my employes. I was responsible for them and my responsibilities became alarmingly great. I have more than fifty Armenians, first and last, but all Protestants, and had they been selfish, cunning men they could have victimized me every month as our work was with the English commissariat in the old Crimean war. Our payments varied from $30,000 to $70,000 a month. But the whole work was planned with a splendid profit which went to a church building fund. Those men were faithful and intelligent. I still know of them with respect and admiration. I invited them to a homestead, but all declined and to this day remained. The greatest reward is that they remember me. One, received knowingly slandered a noble people.

If I had known that for the last ten years England has done nothing for the Armenians he could have spared his sin and his silly about their raising the devil and trusting to England to get them out.

We must follow the good president a little further.

"The Grand Turk, ignorant of those western appliances, judges, juries, court and jails sends a draw of Bashi-Bazouks bidding them to do thorough according to the merits of the case. They obey with the result that there are no more Armenian outbreaks in that locality because there are no more Armenians to break out. There you have quite a much recent history, horrible but perfectly natural."

The amended reading should be. Then you have optimized much recent falsehood, the truth being horrible and perfectly devilish.

It is true that the Grand Turk has no jury but that he has no judges, courts and jails in every concert. Of those appliances he has two, and of great thirty compared with ours. Their jails may be due to one man their occupants a thousand to one. Ours are crowded with scores of our leaders, of Governor Gregorians, priests, politicians, conspirators and industrious, worthy men who cannot pay their taxes on property that has been destroyed or "should" are crowded into these vile places where the atmosphere is most horrible and infectious. With no covering, with poor and scant food, they are happy if some distant taken them away. They can leave any day by saying "I Mammed is the prophet of God," but scores and scores of them are dying every week, martyrs of Jesus. President Andrews must not ridicule such a people. He fears we think too highly of their Christianity. Well, they can die for it. One hundred thousand have been slain, not ten hundred thousand have died lingering deaths in want and misery indescribable, and unknown thousands have perished in filthy prisons "not accepting deliverance" and thousands are still suffering in the patience of God.

No Bashi Bazouk has been called to the work of plunder, outrage and blood. The regular Turkish soldiery and the Kourdish and Circassian mob have done it all, under the direction of officers. The Sultan is responsible for the whole and it is his work. He would extinguish Christianity and establish Islam.

We have thus discharged a painful duty in controverting every statement made by President Andrews with regard to the Armenians and the Turks.

How is it that a man so eminent should unexpectedly fall into such a jungle of absurd falsehoods and misapprehensions?

He has furnished us the key. "He converse with several gentlemen who know both the Turks and Armenians perfectly well."

We have met these same "several gentlemen," who know everything perfectly well, in wholly different places and at different times. They are well dressed, have some knowledge of society, are very sociable, will find out almost by intuition your business and what you are after and whether you are going so as to help it all any way open. They attach themselves to you without your knowing it and you find them most agreeable and communicative on just the subjects you wish to inquire about. Here is a man whose knowledge is clear, positive and always supported by well chosen illustrative facts and descriptions of eminent persons. Why should you wish to go further? You have history, politics, religion, manners and customs, brought right before you.

Especially do these "several gentlemen" rejoice in finding an unsophisticated, intelligent traveller, and if they see that they have gained his ear they proceed to stuff him. They are an amusing people. I had experience with them fifty years ago. Every large hotel will have two or three, and specimens will be found in every large Mediterranean steamer.

At present they are rather monotonous for they all talk in one strain. They talk up the Turks and talk down the Armenians.

The Sultan has an immense secret service like the "Third Circle of the Imperial Chancery" so wonderfully revealed to us by the "Revue de Deux Mondes" many years ago. That these gentlemen are in the pay of the Sultan there can be little doubt. They all teach one and the same lesson. It is just what we have learned from the good president and which we have shown to be utterly untruthful.

The Amphitrite's Peril.

News of a serious nature in connection with the United States monitor Amphitrite has just leaked out. It is stated upon the authority of an officer of the vessel, which has just finished repairing at the navy yard, that while she was coaling at Lambert's Point, preparatory to her present cruise down the coast, the coal trimmers found something in the bunkers which was too large for lump of coal. Investigating it they discovered that it was a keg containing twenty-five pounds of blasting powder, probably sufficient, had it got into the fire box to have caused an explosion of the boilers that would have blown the big ironclad out of the water. The keg was opened and a handful of powder placed upon the deck and ignited as a test.

There are all kinds of theories regarding the matter, the most plausible being that the keg was accidentally left in the car at the mines and the coal loaded on top of it. Another is that some disloyal Cuban sympathizer placed it there to prevent the vessel from patrolling the shore. This theory is generally disbelieved.

The agent of the Pocahontas Coal Company denies all knowledge of the affair, but does not deny that the keg was found. He is at a loss to explain it.

Dog Muzzles Playing Important Part in English Politics.

Gossip of the Nobility and Other Interesting News Items.

(Copyright 1897 by the Associated Press)

London, Nov. 20.—The dog muzzle, is admittedly playing a very important part in the politics of Great Britain, the discontent of dog-owners at the rigorous muzzling orders, which now have been two years in force, having raised the muzzle to the dignity of a grave, political question. There is abundant evidence that it influenced the recent bye-elections and that it is generally disturbing the peace of the ministers. The Marquis of Salisbury, during the course of his speech at the Albert Hall on Tuesday last admitted this in his usual cynical style, and on Thursday night the minister of agriculture, Mr Walter Long, speaking at a large political meeting, devoted his entire speech to a defense of his position.

He quoted statistics showing the rapid decrease of rabies since the introduction of the order. In 1895 he said there were 603 cases of rabies in England adding that in 1897, there were only 111 cases, while of these only 51 have occurred since June.

The Times devotes a leading article to the question, which concluded: We can hardly believe that, even among the rabid lifes of a contested election, the muzzling order could be paraded against her majesty's government after the presentation of Mr Long's figures."

The continued long mild weather has added to the enjoyment of the country house parties which are now in full swing in all parts of England.

With the Nobility.

On Monday, the Prince of Wales visits the Earl of Durham at Lambton Castle where Lady Randolph Churchill and the Duchess of Manchester are among the guests.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have also been in their usual Saturday to Monday party at Sandringham. A quiet gathering is expected here this week. The Prince has issued invitations for a shooting party at Wynyard, the seat of the Marquis of Londonderry, in Durham, on Nov. 30. Among the guests invited are the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, Prince and Princess Christian, Prince Victor of Hohenlohe, Count and Countess Gleichen, Lord and Lady Wolverton, Lord and Lady Cadogan, Lord and Lady Lonsdale, Lord and Lady Ribblesdale, Lord and Lady Brooke, Lord and Lady Lurgan, Lord and Lady Rosebery, Lord and Lady Dudley, Lord and Lady Cowper, Lord and Lady Ashcombe, Lord and Lady Wantage, Lord and Lady Hothfield, Lord and Lady Ilchester, Lord and Lady Ellesmere, Lord and Lady Crewe, Lord and Lady Tweedmouth, Lord and Lady Ripon, Lord and Lady Rothschild, Lord and Lady Hamilton, Lord and Lady Wimborne, Lord and Lady Dunraven, Lord and Lady Lathom, Lord and Lady Lurgan, Lord and Lady Rosebery, Lord and Lady Dudley, Lord and Lady Cowper, Lord and Lady Ashcombe, Lord and Lady Wantage, Lord and Lady Hothfield, Lord and Lady Ilchester, Lord and Lady Ellesmere, Lord and Lady Crewe, Lord and Lady Tweedmouth, Lord and Lady Ripon, Lord and Lady Rothschild, Lord and Lady Hamilton, Lord and Lady Wimborne, Lord and Lady Dunraven, Lord and Lady Lathom.

First Church Play for Years.

An episode of peculiar interest was the enactment by clergymen, on Wednesday last in Canterbury hall of the first church play in recent years. It was entitled "The Conversion of England" was written by Rev Henry Cresswell, and was really a success, on of the historical features, with a Druidical procession, a solemn strain, to the accompaniment of sacred music, including a Roman "mass" at which English slaves attracted Pope Gregory's attention; the meeting between Pope Gregory and the monks with King Ethelbert on the Isle of Thanet, and King Ethelbert's baptism at Canterbury. The colorful figures of the introduction to St. Augustine. The costumes, scenery and chants were historically accurate, being the result of researches in the museums of London, Dresden and Stockholm. The play is described as a deeply entertainment.

There were only four of the London theatres whose doors are not opened although the season is hardly underway, as two of the four will be filled early in next month. Yet for all this display of theatrical activity hardly more than half of the 30 playhouses which struggle "open" for the patronage and the money of the Londoners are paying their running expenses.

Various theories are advanced for the failure of London theatres to pay, the most credited one being that the income of metropolitan playgoers is steadily declining, a large number having gone to the provinces, at home. Another factor which unquestionably counts is the price charged for seats. An orchestra stall in a London theatre cost ten shillings ($2 50) while other seats are correspondingly high.

The New Volume of St. Nicholas.

St. Nicholas, conducted by Mrs Mary Mapes Dodge, enters upon the twenty-fifth year of its successful career as the leading magazine for boys and girls with its November issue. A remarkably varied and attractive list of features has been secured for the coming year, including contributions by several of the foremost writers of the day.

Rudyard Kipling's first "Jungle Stories" were written for St. Nicholas, and this year he will contribute a new series of stories to the magazine, called "The Just-So Stories," written in a new vein—fantastic stories. Some stories, Mr Kipling says, are meant to be read quietly, and some are meant to be told aloud. Some are for rainy mornings and some for bedtime. These stories of Mr. Kipling's are meant to be told "just-so," and one must not alter one single little word. They are stories about animals, queer, very queer animals.

Mr. Frank R. Stockton will contribute "The Buccaneers of Our Coast." This is a series of narrative sketches in which will buttressed the origin, characteristics, adventures and exploits of that wild body of buccaneers, calling themselves "The Brethren of the Coast," who during the greater part of the seventeenth century ravaged and colonized the waters and shores of the West Indies.

Mr. J. T. Trowbridge has written a serial, "Two Biddiket Boys and Their Adventures with a Wonderful Trick Dog." This is marked by his best qualities and is full of effective interest. A lively story of track and field is "The Lakeside Athletic Club," by Rupert Hughes, which will tell of a year of sports carried on by a party of "real boys." Mrs. W. O. Stoddard writes a stirring romance of pilgrimage, "With the Black Prince," telling of the fortunes and adventures of an English lad who fights at the battle of Crecy. A fairy tale of science, "Through the Earth," by Clement Fezandie, is a serial of the Jules Verne order. It tells of the daring conception of a scientist of the next century, who by the enormously increased power of electricity succeeds in boring a hole through the earth and sending a boy in a cigar-shaped car through the tunnel.

There will be the usual number of articles of instruction and entertainment, short stories, poems and jingles, as well as hundreds of pictures by leading artists. The price of St. Nicholas is 25 cents a copy, or $3 00 a year.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

Dr. William McDavid, of Augusta, has been appointed high secretary of the High Court of Maine, Independent Order of Foresters, to succeed E. P. Cellis, Esq., of Skowhegan, deceased. Dr McDavid states that the standing and stability of the High Court of Maine, I. O. F., is in no way affected by the desolation and death of Secretary Collis.

The big Lockwood chimney went on a tare Thursday night and nearly frightened the wits out of some of the people in Waterville. At about 8 o'clock, the chimney began to belch forth fire and smoke at a rate that did fair to eclipse all efforts of old Vesuvius. The city marshal sent word to the watchman that the chimney was on fire and the people in that section of the city watched the big column of fire as it leaped aloft, lighting up the surrounding country like a house on fire. In other words, the Lockwood chimney "got hot."

The prosperity of Cherryfield, in common with most towns of Washington county, has been seriously affected by reason of the exodus of its people to the West and the manufacturing centres of New England, says the Narraguagus Times. It is estimated that in the past 35 years the immigration fever has carried off fully as many as are contained in the present population of the town. Within the last 10 years the principal cause of the drain has been due to the narrowing up of the industrial field.

Thomas G. Newenham returned to Cherryfield last week, after an absence of two years in Nicaragua, where he has had charge of a camp of 100 hands employed at cutting mahogany lumber for Georg D Emery, of Chelsea, Mass.

Among the old residents of Harrington, who have seen many years of sea service, is Capt John T Putnam, one of the crew of the bark Belgrade, that rounded Cape Horn in 1849, while on her passage to the land of gold. Since that time he has sailed 25 years as master, at best retiring with a record that is something remarkable. In that time he never lost a vessel or a man, and always had the good luck to deliver his cargo safely to the consignee.

George C Leeman, whose right hand was crushed and disabled for life while at work at the shoe factory, has brought an action against the company, through his attorneys, Messrs. Rounds and Mc-Cartright, for the sum of $25,000 damages, and the Calais Times. The writ was served and property attached to secure the claim.

Several men were in the hold of the sloop Rocky Mountain at Red Beach, discharging cargo, when a hole was blown in her bottom, letting out the water and filling the hold with steam and smoke. Three escaped through the hatch way but Robert Kelley, who was nearer the stern of the vessel seeing a hole leading into the cabin, jumped through it, the cabin door being closed he could no find his way out and but for the assistance of those outside would have suffocated. When rescued he was fairly exhausted.

Condition of the Crops Abroad

A Washington despatch says: The Agricultural Department has issued its monthly review of the foreign crop situation. Much attention is devoted to the grain crop of Russia, especially wheat on account of its magnitude as a factor in the European supply. The review says that all accounts agree in representing the wheat crop as deficient, but as to the extent of the deficiency much difference in opinion exists. After quoting many despatches painting the crop situation in various provinces in very black colors and the statement of the consul at Odessa that this year's crop has proved a failure, the review calls attention to the fact that since the harvest Russia has exported grain "very freely." The exports of the wheat from August 1 to October 30 are given by the review, summarized to 1,452,840 quarters, against 2,855,040 quarters and 3,382,760 quarters during the corresponding period in 1896 and 1895 respectively. These very large exports have led commercial papers to withhold their credence from the more pessimistic of the reports which have been published. That the crop was deficient was admitted but that the failure was as serious as such reports implies few of the grain dealers of Western Europe would believe. Recently, however, as no change of attitude is becoming apparent. Stocks in the ports are now increasing in the manner usual for this time of year and the opinion is freely expressed that after this month Russia can be relied upon for only a very moderate shipment. It is generally understood that Russia had large stocks of wheat left over from the crops of the preceding year and this fact, coupled with the good prices which have prevailed may account for the large exports which have taken place, even though the crop failure in large parts of Russia has been extremely serious.

The review says the estimates of the Russian crop are so uncertain that their reproduction would be of doubtful utility. The preliminary official figures for France show a reduction of 20 per cent below 1896 and 17 per cent below the average for ten years. As for five years France and Russia produced 20 per cent of the world's crop, the review says a heavy shortage in both countries would therefore be sufficient in itself to produce a sensible effect on the world's supply, to lessen it of the short crops in Austria-Hungary, the Danubian and Balkan countries and elsewhere, and the shortness of the last crop in India, Australasia and Argentine. In Germany, which is the principal bread grain of that country, has been officially estimated at 4 per cent less than last year's crop. The various estimates for Austria-Hungary are more or less conflicting, but there is no doubt as to there being a heavy deficit in the wheat crop. The wheat crop of the United Kingdom is estimated at 50,000,000 bushels. The preliminary estimate of the Italian wheat crop makes it 85,131,000 bushels, against 144 723 700 bushels last year. The Roumanian wheat crop is estimated at 37,134 720 bushels. The Bulgarian wheat crop is estimated at 10 per cent rye at 35 to 40 per cent, and barley at 25 per cent, less than last year. The wheat crop of Turkey has been estimated at 56 800,000 imperial bushels.

As regards crops now growing in the Southern Hemisphere, the news continues to be favorable on the whole. In Argentina drouth, which for a time in some provinces threatened serious injury, seems to have been generally broken, and danger of any serious loss from such a source seems now, in the advanced state of the crop, to have passed. The Indian wheat crop has been sown under favorable conditions, and the same is in general true of the sown grain crops of Europe, and both in India and in Europe the weather seems in the main to have been favorable to growth.

Repentance of a Burglar.

The stranger, criminal the police of Danbury, Mass., have had to do with for a long time is locked up there. He says that he is Harry Gilmore, of Middletown, Conn. He walked in the police station and laid two watches, some shoes, an overcoat and a variety of other articles upon the desk in front of Sergeant Bradley.

"I'm a burglar," he said, "and I want to be locked up."

The man told the sergeant that he was an ex-convict. He served a term in the State prison at Wethersfield for arson and was in the same institution for burglary. He was released a few weeks ago and came to Danbury. There have been at least fifty burglaries in that city since then. Gilmore told the sergeant to get a team and take him about the city and he would show the places that he had robbed. He took the officer to houses where even the residents did not know that they had been robbed. They quickly found, however, that Gilmore's story was true. Then he took the police out to a spot in the woods, two miles from the city, where he had lived. There a quantity of stolen property was found.

Gilmore says that he was living in his retreat alone at night when he realized suddenly how bad he was. It was raining hard but he had gathered up the most valuable things that he had and took them "to the police station and surrendered himself." He has written to some of his victims asking them to pray for him. He seems earnest in his repentance and says that he prefers state prison to hell.

CITY AND VICINITY.

In the vicinity of Clark's Corner, Prospect, there have been the most summer 24 thunder showers. The first was March 24 and the last Nov 2. They did not seem to like the Corner, for they all went over and it. We'll venture to predict that the Clark's Corner ladies didn't relish such neglect.

George Wheeler and second rush Walton of the Lewiston polo team were on the warpath Friday afternoon for old Reynard. Mr. Wheeler has two very nice young hound pups which he procured in Pennsylvania and which were bred in Kentucky. These two sportsmen were mainly out to teach the pups to chase, says the Lewiston Sun.

It won't do, always, to let the old schoolhouse fall into disrepute because at that particular time there are few scholars for it, says the Kennebec Journal. Give the district a chance to recover its reputation and prestige. It may succeed as did the school district in the town of Monroe, comprising 17 families, and in which about six years ago it was thought the school would have to be discontinued, as there were no scholars to go to school. Now 11 families out of the 17 have 21 children under three years of age, 10 under seven years of age, and seven under ten years of age, making 38 in all.

At no time does the tired housekeeper more fully appreciate a lessening of her burdens than at Thanksgiving, and it is at that busy time that the Woman's Exchange fully demonstrates its usefulness, and how much of a necessity it is to the women of Bangor and vicinity. Delicious bread, rolls, pies, cake, fellies, pickles and other necessities and delicacies, may be obtained at any time, while orders for any articles not on hand will be filled promptly. The lunch department has become a great success. Its appetizing food, daintily served, makes it a favorite resort for those needing refreshments, and the whole establishment in its various branches has, through the energy and perseverance of its managers, proved itself a veritable blessing to the community.

A Pleasant Event

A Levant correspondent writes: Wednesday evening, Nov. 17, at the residence of the bride, Mr. Arnold Goodale, of East Corinth, and Mrs Lucy A. Brown, formerly of Bangor were united in marriage. A large company of friends collected to witness the ceremony and it did not lack the wedding march, played by Miss Nettie Smith, violinist, and Miss Grace Wiggin, pianist, began. The happy couple marched to their place in the beautifully decorated parlor, where the ceremony was very pleasantly performed by Rev Mr Kearney.

After congratulations a favorite hymn was rendered by Miss Drew, by special request of the bride, after which a program of, consisting of quartettes, trios, duets and solos, was carried out. Shortly after the ceremony, to the surprise of all, the full band, led by Mr Frank Clark, gave a lively serenade and was treated to a collation of all kinds of cake, fruit and ice cream was served. The wedding cake was very unique and worthy of mention. It consisted of four kinds of cake baked in a pyramid about two feet in height, made and served by the bride. At a late hour the company dispersed, having many good wishes for a long and happy life and substantial tokens of the high esteem in which the happy couple are held.

Louis Lent, of Boston, who deals quite extensively in old junk, is in Fairfield to superintend the taking down of the three immense digesters of the old pulp mill at Shawmut. These came into the possession of Lawrence, Newhall & Co. after the burning of the pulp mill property, and as they are of no use to that company they now pass into the care of Mr Lent at a fraction of the original cost. With them goes the last vestige of a project, which at its conception bade f

GRIMSON ON TOP.

Again Bangor Beats Portland in Annual Foot Ball Game.

Score Was 8—0 and the Ball Was Continually on Portland Ground.

A Splendid Victory for the Valiant Queen City Players.

Again Bangor wins

Portland High School on Saturday succumbed to the wearers of the crimson to the tune of 8—0 at Maplewood Park In the annual foot ball game between these two old rivals in this city

It was the second contest of the fall, the first having been won by Bangor 4 0 in Portland on November 6th, on a field which was covered with mud Portland said after that game, give us a dry field at Bangor and we will surely defeat the Bangor team They had the dry field but instead of defeating they were done up brown

At no time, except in the last few seconds of the game, was Bangor's goal in danger, in fact Portland was never nearer than the 10 yard line previous to the end of the game It was very nearly pitch dark at the close of the game, with a few seconds to play Bangor had the ball and on the pass back there was a bad fumble, as the players could not see the ball The pigskin rolled back on the ground some fifteen yards and then a Portland player picked it up and started for Bangor's goal The players could hardly distinguish each other in the gloom, but Smith dashed after the Portland man and downed him a yard from Langor's line Before a line up the referee's whistle blew and the game was over

Bangor a last week's of practice before the game did them very much good as was seen in the decidedly snappy work which the team did After the very first play in which C Conners plunged through Portland's line for 6 yards, the spectators saw that Bangor was playing a get-there style of both offensive and defensive work which gained almost at will on the former and kept Portland from making any material gains whatever, on the latter

Cutler played his old position at center for the first time this fall and did finely C Conners and Bailey distinguished themselves by good gains and by making the two touchdowns Capt Hunt made several pretty end runs and the work of Harry Hunt at tackle was very strong He made several long gains Sargent, J Conners Smith Howard and Givren put up an excellent game and Bridges at quarterback ran the team in a praiseworthy manner

For Portland, Capt Anderson's work was brilliant, as usual, and Twitchell was the best ground gainer As Portland had the ball little of the time and then could not gain to any extent their work at no time caused their supporters to rise to any heights of enthusiasm The Portland plan of battle was to break Bangor's line, the observation of the C C I Bangor game at Waterville by Portland players, when C C I got through the B H S forwards pretty often, doubtless having caused them to adopt that style of play

The Bangor line was not what it was in the C C I game and Portland could do nothing with it Bangor had the ball a number of times on Portland's 5 yard line and inside and Portland may consider herself lucky that the score was not 24 0 The Bangor crowd prevented its own team from adding a possible two more points to the score by preventing the second goal from being kicked The enthusiasm was so great when Bailey made the second touchdown that the crowd surged upon the upper end of field and before it could be cleared again the time limit for kicking a goal three minutes, had expired and no attempt could be made

There were in the vicinity of 1,200 people on the grounds when the play was started and it was a brilliant scene with the flags ribbons and festoons of the crimson of Bangor intermingled with the blue of Portland Many of the fair sex in attendance were bedecked with the two colors, the crimson very largely predominating however Before the game Manager Hannaford led around the field for good luck the Portland mascot—a boy dressed from head to foot in blue Judging from the result of the contest Portland will have to get a new boy

For some unknown reason Mr Sanwood, of Bowdoin College who was written to over a week ago requesting him to act as referee did not appear in the field and there was quite a long delay while a referee was being chosen Finally Mr Bird, of the University of Maine, was agreed upon and he performed the duties with entire impartiality The teams lined up soon after 3 as follows

First Half

Bangor won the toss and Capt Hunt took the upper goal Portland kicked off, Givren caught the ball and made 5 yards but Umpire Murphy saw Portland offside and made them kick-off again Howard caught the ball and made 15 yards C Conners made 6 through Flaherty and Bangor got 5 for off side play C Conners made 5 through Flaherty, Bailey 15 around the left end, Harry Hunt 15 through the left of Portland's line, Capt Hunt 5 through Dorticos, C Conners half a yard through the center, Harry Hunt 20 around Fogg and C Conners made the first touchdown through the right center

Bangor scored without once losing the ball, Capt Hunt failed at the try for goal and the score was 4—0 Portland kicked off, Bridges caught the ball and made 10 yards Capt Hunt made 5 yards around right end and Givren 20 around the left end A fumble gave the ball to Portland Portland made 8 yards through the line and then had to punt. Bailey, Howard, Capt. Hunt and C. Conners worked the ball along with from 3 to 6 yards at every try and time was called with the ball in Bangor's possession on Portland's 20 yard line.

Second Half.

Bangor kicked off. Portland made 25 yards through the line and 5 yards on a tandem play on right tackle, Twitchell having the ball Bangor took the ball on downs in Portland territory but Portland got it back on off side play Portland fumbled and Givren fell on the ball Bailey made 5 yards on left tackle, C Conners 5 Howard 10 around right end and Portland took the ball on downs Again Bangor took it on downs and Capt Hal Hunt made a fine run of 30 yards around Fogg at right end.

Givren made 10 and Anderson and Portland got the ball on downs Portland immediately punted Bridges caught the ball and made 5 yards Capt Hunt punted Portland fumbled and Bangor got the ball Bailey and Conners made good gains, but the ball went to Portland for off side play The ball exchanged hands on downs and Portland punted for a loss Bangor had the ball on Portland's 5 yard line, but Portland held for downs Portland punted and on the next line up Bailey went through Dillon and Anderson for the second touchdown

The delighted crowd surged on the field and could not be gotten back until the 3 minutes time allowed for kicking a goal had expired, hence it possible two more points were lost Score 8—0 It was now nearly pitch dark Portland kicked off Bangor made one try without gain and then fumbled as the ball could hardly be seen Dillon picked it up and ran about 20 yards, but Smith brought him down a yard from the goal line Time was up the game was over and Bangor had won another great victory

Dinner and Dance

In the evening the Portland team was entertained at a dinner at the Y M C A building with the Bangor team, by the young ladies of the senior class Miss Nora L Fairbanks was chairman of the committee on arrangements The following young ladies assisted in entertaining Miss Fairbanks Miss Ilda M Knowles, Miss Jean Jewett Miss Lucy E Peck, Miss Rachael A Jordan Miss Caroline Webster Miss Hazel Stewart, Miss Bessie Wilde Miss Lelia Patten, Miss Louise Sawyer Miss Lucy Burr Miss Elfreda Gorham and Miss Ida Mitchell

After dinner speeches were made by Capt Anderson Manager Hannaford and Coach Warren, of Portland and Capt Hunt, Coach Bailey and Manager Bridges, of Bangor

Afterwards the company went to the armory of Co G in Court street where dancing was enjoyed Four pieces of Pullen's orchestra furnished music The armory was decorated for the event The entire affair was very enjoyable

The most of the Portland team returned on Saturday night and the rest on Sunday

HIGH LICENSE VS. PROHIBITION

The Subject of An Effective Address by Rev J S Penman

At the Central church on Sunday evening a good sized congregation heard the pastor, Rev J S Penman, deliver an effective address upon the subject of high license against prohibition Rev Mr Penman took his text from Luke 12 51, 52 53

Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth I tell you nay but rather division

For from henceforth there shall be five in one house divided three against two and two against three

The father shall be divided against the son, and the son against the father, the mother against the daughter and the daughter against the mother, the mother in law against her daughter in law, and the daughter in law against her mother in law

Rev Mr Penman in beginning said that the question of the evening was the practical one of the working of high license Does high license do all that its advocates claim or does it break down in practice

It is claimed for high license that it reduces the number of saloons that it reduces the amount of drunkenness that it increases the receipts from saloons and that the high license saloons become centers for the stopping of the liquor traffic

The question is is high license a panacea or is not prohibition equally as good? Does high license do away with lawlessness, or is not lawlessness a marked feature of it? Does the giving of the right to a few saloons by the State to sell liquor do away with the illicit traffic?

The speaker quoted from statistics regarding the working of high license in Pennsylvania. It was shown that while the number of saloons in Philadelphia was reduced from 6 050 to 2 080 an account was taken of the number of kitchen bar rooms, or speak easys which sprang up under the law There were said to be 6 000 of them and they became a regular institution

It has been said that if the law were enforced here it would cause many social clubs to be formed, but how would it be under high license? Turn to Philadelphia and it will be seen that the social clubs increased prodigiously under high license

It was only by the constant vigilance of the law and order league and public sentiment that the number of license saloons was kept within legal bounds Police officials will do their duty when they are supported by an aggressive public sentiment and it is not right to expect them to enforce the law here without such a sentiment back of them

From statistics the speaker showed that in Reading, Pa, about the size of Bangor, there were 182 saloons Illegal selling was common then and there was no attempt to enforce high license except in the case of the larger saloons North Adams, Mass was taken as an example High license reduced the saloons from 34 to 16 but did not stop illegal selling

From these facts the speaker said the conclusion can be drawn that it is no argument for high license to give statistics about the reduction of saloons without showing the amount of illegal traffic and that the evidence shows that high license is no improvement over prohibition in stopping lawlessness It has been claimed that high license reduces the amount of drunkenness This is difficult to determine but it seems to make as much drunkenness as the low license

In Philadelphia there is little difference in the amount of drunkenness under the two systems, in Pittsburg there are hundreds of "speak-easys" and in Wilkesbarre the statement is made that it is an open question whether high license is better

Mr. Penman said that he believed that with high license in Bangor there would be as much lawlessness.

The conclusions to be drawn are that high license is not a panacea to control the liquor traffic, that it does not prevent lawlessness, for while it reduces the number of saloons it increases the number of illicit places, and that it does not decrease drunkenness or crime

The speaker said that we should do something to find a way out of our present conditions We can either strive to enforce our laws, repeal them or simply do nothing, which would be dishonor and continual shame

If the majority of the citizens do not believe in the law they should say so, try to repeal it and get something better The best way is to stand by the officers and not to hold them responsible if this is not done There can be no law enforcement until public sentiment is back of it It is just to our public officials to put them in office and then give them no support?

In conclusion Rev Mr Penman said that this matter is one which makes a difference in our conception of right and wrong and in our respect for the law

MADE OVER.

THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

An Interesting Report From the Secretary Mrs F H Noble—Adjourned Annual Meeting on Saturday

The adjourned annual meeting of the Associated Charities was held Saturday afternoon at the Y M C A building Mrs F H Noble, the secretary, presented her annual report which will be read with interest It was as follows

Mrs. Noble's Report

A celebrated writer has well said "There is a great moral law, having its foundation in the best and noblest feelings of human society that the strong have a duty to the weak the wise to the foolish the good to the bad and those who have in charge this world's goods to those who have but little Within so recent a period as the beginning of the present century this law no benefit to its practical working was by no means a generally accepted rule of conduct, but during the last thirty years the great fundamental principle that No man liveth unto himself has received almost world wide recognition. One of the most promising results of the universal spread of this sentiment is the growth of organized and associated charity From Maine to California men and women of keen intellect broad culture and philanthropic spirit are carefully studying the great problem the correct solving of which means so much to the prosperity if not to the safety and perpetuity of our republic.

The humblest citizen is now prepared and put our citizens stand almost alone in their apparent indifference to associated charity work The society which today holds its tenth annual meeting was formed in response to what seemed a popular demand for more systematic and intelligent methods of caring for the poor But there has not developed that spirit of hearty co-operation that was confidently expected. People still ask, what does the society do Associated Charities want to do? It does not want to be considered a new organization to be added to those already existing It does not want to take the place of any organized charity today, or disturb the work of anybody who is doing a good work here All that it desires is to effect some better understanding among those who are working for a common cause It is the opinion of those best qualified to judge that if all the benevolent organizations of Bangor would co-operate upon some associated charity basis there would be a saving of fifty per cent in time and labor and no unnecessary waste in money No one charitable society can do all or even one of the many things which belongs to a charitable agency if to turn any effects a division of labor each one doing that for which it is best fitted and so long itself within its own province We believe many warm friends would of citizens who are greatly desirous of their less fortunate fellowmen but either not awakened to the importance of investigation as necessary to intelligent giving or having, under them of associated charity ways of working prefer to bestow their alms in the old and sentimentalized manner thus fostering the evils they deplore
